Great Job!

Proposal

Overview:

I will be volunteering at a hospital for the opportunity to help others in their time of need. This opportunity will also create a learning environment for my future career path as a nurse.

Nursing is vital to the community and volunteering is a good way to start ⁱⁿ that field. When one volunteers, it allows a connection to the community and the organization. It provides a chance for the volunteer to "make new friends, expand you're network, and boost you're social skills". Another benefit of volunteering, especially in a hospital or the nursing field in general is that it boost the self confidence of the volunteer. In this particular scenario, it puts the volunteer in a position to advance in their given career field which will help when it comes to schooling and future life choices (Saisan).

Process:

There are many ways that this journey can be transformed into a learning experience. I plan on volunteering at a hospital. In order to do this, I have to go request the forms from the hospital. After this, I have to go in for an interview. Once the interview process is complete, I have to go in for medical testing such as Tuberculin and a drug test (Mercy).

At this hospital, I will have the opportunity to learn data entry that will be required for my future career. This will happen through watching, listening and learning from those who are already in the medical field. I will also be able to learn through reading whatever information is provided to me and through hands on experiences. These hands on experiences, such as visiting patients and providing them with the emotional support that they may not get elsewhere, are what will help me create relationships and bonds that will help me in many years to come (What are the benefits).

Intentions:

My expectations of this volunteer experience are varied. I plan on learning hands on training with helping others in their time of need. This can be through the previously mentioned emotional support or even through offering guidance. This will also be good experience in helping others outside of my family. One thing that I hope to gain out of this experience is the patience to deal with different people's personalities (What are the benefits).

develop this;
what are the effects on ment.

Timeline:

My timeline for this endeavor is approximately ten weeks. It is required to have at least 40 hours worth of volunteer time. I plan on being able to volunteer four hours a week with still balancing school and family. My anticipated start date is the end of January/ beginning of February and I expect to be finished by the middle of April.

Materials:

Myself

A hospital in need of volunteers

I can think of additional materials needed

Conclusion:

A volunteer services coordinator, Robin Brown, states that "Hospital volunteering gives students a chance to learn job skills and also give their time and talents to people in need."

He also believes that the different experiences can be carried and referred to for a lifetime (Mercy).

With the acceptance from the hospital in the volunteer position, I will seek medical experience. Through this experience of giving my free time to people in need, I will help myself. Helping myself will include gaining self confidence and becoming familiar with other people. It may even help me find who I am and become a less stressed person.

This experience is one I will not be able to go through alone. I will need support from my friends, family and even professional support. I will need my friends to help me when the stress becomes too much for me or when I see something I do not know how to handle. I will need my family for the same emotional support as well as helping me get to and from the volunteer location. As far as the professional support goes, I may need help getting into the program.

Thank you,
K. Cantrell
